Dear BETASA member

Re: Professional development with the author of “The Essential Entrepreneur” hosted by Dr John Newton, Principal, Scotch College

I would like to personally invite you to an afternoon with the highly acclaimed international author of ‘The Essential Entrepreneur’ – Professor Richard Turner. Richard is a renowned Australian innovator, award-winning entrepreneur, and a specialist in market disruption. Richard has founded four significant companies in Australia across four completely different industries, founded the Entrepreneurs Organisation in South Australia and recently completed a term as Entrepreneur in Residence at the University of South Australia. More details on Richard can be found at: www.essentialentrepreneur.com

Today, Richard is fiercely passionate about helping people successfully start and scale companies – setting out the essential rules to give first time entrepreneurs the best chance of success. This passion extends to the current generation of Business Innovation students moving through South Australian secondary schools.

Richard has been heavily involved in the delivery of the Business Innovation curriculum here at Scotch College, which has had tremendous impacts on our students. I invite you to find out more how Richard’s ideas can influence your curriculum delivery by joining me here at Scotch College from 4:30pm – 6pm on Monday 1st August. The structure of the afternoon will include a brief outline of how Richard has partnered with Scotch College to achieve curriculum outcomes for Stage 1 and Stage 2 Business Innovation students. Richard will then lead an open discussion with you about how he can collaborate further with the delivery of the Business Innovation curriculum across the State to promote positive academic outcomes for students who may later join South Australia’s business community. Afternoon tea will be provided.
